

A Canopy of moonlight

If you cage yourself in a room, you will be able to receive sunlight only through a window, you will receive just a bit of moonlight and a bit of breeze.

Enter the courtyard and experience even bigger and brighter side of the moonlight, far bigger slice of the moonlight and a strong gust of wind is waiting for you here.

When you will run in the streets, sunlight will be touching your feet, there will be a canopy of moonlight over you to shield you and the wind will sway your way.

But if you want light all around you, then go out in the open field, remove all the barriers around, open all the doors and windows of your mind to make the way for fresh air to pass through you, for the moonlight to penetrate such deep into your veins that you become the soothing light for others; the world is then rejuvenated with the divinity of your coolness.

26.09.2000

Author: Dr. Archana Kumari

Translation: Dr. Ravia Gupta